Notes for Interpreting the NIH Rankings

The rankings are based upon direct NIH awards received during the federal fiscal year. The data can be downloaded for a particular fiscal year via the NIH website's "Awards by Location" page. For medical schools, filter the awards lists by selecting all awards where the "Attributed to Medical School" flag is "Y". However, one must further look over the organizations to pick only those that have medical schools. For nursing or health professions, pick those awards where the NIH MC Combining Name is "School of Nursing" or "Sch Allied Health Professions". Additionally, awards for the Mayo Clinic (Rochester, MN) have been added to the medical schools data, although Mayo's awards do not have the "Attributed to Medical School" flag set to "Y". Further Mayo does not allocate their awards to individual departments. Ranks are determined using the Organizational Name as the primary key.

The public ranking for the School of Medicine is calculated by KUMC Enterprise Analytics using the classification, public or private, that each institution maintains with the Association of American Medical Colleges. For the Schools of Health Professions and Nursing, the public rank is determined using the institution's Carnegie Classification.

Differences from Blue Ridge Medical Institute Rankings

2013: As of their 12/2013 publish date, BRIMR lists 139 total Schools of Medicine receiving awards including The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center, which does not have a medical school. KUMC excludes MD Anderson from the data.
