Postdoctoral Fellowship in
Psycho-Oncology and Behavioral Medicine

Kansas University Medical Center invites applications to its postdoctoral training program in Psycho-Oncology and Behavioral Medicine. This position is ideal for an individual with doctoral level training in clinical psychology and behavioral medicine or health psychology who is seeking specialized training in assessment and intervention with patients living with cancer and their caregivers. The program is also in the process of seeking APA Accreditation.

The goal of the fellowship is to develop psychologists’ clinical and research competency in treatment of psychological distress throughout the cancer trajectory. The fellow will provide outpatient clinical assessment and intervention and inpatient and outpatient consultation for medical providers. The fellow will also contribute to the Psycho-Oncology Research Program.

Applicants must have completed an APA accredited or approved internship program, with prior training in an APA accredited PhD or PsyD program in Clinical or Counseling Psychology. Application materials include:
- Letter of interest
- Current CV
- 3 letters of recommendation
- All Graduate level transcripts
